Say you saw it in the Aire Valley Mag!

Inside Haworth Main Street

by Antony Silson

Yes, I know that you can't actually go 'Inside a Street', but on my relentless scouring of local places that inspire and amaze I felt that Haworth Main Street was well worth a look. Nearly 100,000 people visit from all around the world every year and it's just over there up that hill.. If you feel particularly energetic you can walk up through the wooded valley bottom to it or even catch a train that is powered by steam. Imagine that!

Firstly, can we clear up the myth that Haworth was ever in a Hovis Advert. That was filmed on Gold Hill in Shaftesbury, Dorset in 1973. Secondly, it's not actually a 'cobbled' street. The correct name is 'Setts'. Setts are shaped pieces of stone which are close laid and then pointed with mortar or bitumen.

Haworth has been the gift that keeps giving to the organisers of the Tour de Yorkshire/France and has witnessed both The Railway Children collecting presents for Mr Perks and Branwell's prolonged demise in 'To Walk Invisible'. Of course, you knew that the Bronte sisters are amongst the biggest selling authors of all time? Yes, that's the Brontes who lived just up the road from Keighley. Just remember that they were from round here and they are the Bronte's not the Brontays!

Now I feel that I am amongst friends here so can I let you into a little secret? Much as I love the 1940's weekend, the packed pubs and restaurants on a summer evening, the sheer spectacle of the Steampunk weekend and the carol singers at Christmas, I just love the Main Street when it's completely deserted. Early in the morning or late at night when it's just me, the view and all the history that has tumbled across the moors and down that famous hill; it is an experience that is both unique and familiar. I don't visit Haworth as much as I would like but maybe one night when the sun is just going down I'll call in for a pint or just stand and think about how lucky we are round here.

Brontë Parsonage Museum at 90

A History of the Museum in 10 Objects

Wild Roses from Nature, Charlotte Brontë, 1830

The rose is my favourite flower. I think some of my earliest memories are of summer holidays spent with my grandmother, helping her tend to the rosebushes in her garden. Images of roses also decorated her house; paintings, tablecloths, tea sets and delicate china ornaments, which - since her passing - have made their way to my own home.

Maybe this is why I've been so drawn to the small watercolour Wild Roses from Nature, painted by Charlotte Brontë when aged just 14. Dated 13th July 1830 in pencil, I assumed that Charlotte had stumbled across the subject matter whilst out walking on a sunny summer day. I pictured her sat on a small rock, a sketchbook perched on her knee, mixing colours with her small watercolour set, trying to capture the beauty of the deep pink flower. The work certainly brings to mind The Country Diary of an Edwardian Lady - Charlotte, like Edith Holden, illuminating her journals with the magical flora and fauna encountered throughout the seasons of the English countryside.

It was only when I read The Art of the Brontës that my initial assumptions were somewhat disrupted; authors Christine Alexander and Jane Sellars suggest that it was perhaps more likely that Charlotte had copied the wild roses from an illustration in one of the many flower and nature painting manuals published in the early 19th century. We know from the watercolours currently on display in Charlotte's bedroom that she did indeed copy from the works of other artists, but we also know that her own paintings were never exact replicas of the originals, adding her own special details and embellishments. Whilst Wild Roses from Nature may have been inspired by another artist's work, I like to think that Charlotte's watercolour contains flourishes unique to her own style. Before becoming the writer we know and cherish, Charlotte had initially held ambitions of becoming a painter. It is clearly evident in this work, painted at such a young age, that she had a precocious artistic talent.

My grandmother taught me how to select the perfect roses for each occasion - red for romance, white for spiritual reflection, yellow to celebrate friendship and pink to extend gratitude and admiration. When I look at this watercolour I cannot help but feel the romance of Charlotte's imagination, the incredible strength of her spirit, the wistful desire to have known her as my friend, and the gratitude and admiration for the timeless body of work she left behind.

Fifty years ago, final preparations were underway as the Railway neared a milestone that many believe would never be reached: the reopening of a complete branch line that had seen its last scheduled passenger train in national ownership over five years before. Those early volunteers had to restore the track and the buildings as well as return the rolling stock and locomotives to operational condition. They had to negotiate their way through the maze of paperwork and rules to enable the trains to run, and build a group of expert volunteers to operate the Railway.

All their effort was rewarded in June 29th, 1968, when at 23.5pm, the first train left Keighley to start the fifty year journey through preservation history. Without all those early volunteers' commitment, vision and hard graft we wouldn't get to savour the sound of the whistle and the sight of a steam locomotive powering up Keighley bank and on to Oxenhope. We wouldn't have been able to welcome Lionel Jeffries' film crew to Oakworth to produce the iconic family classic, The Railway Children, and we wouldn't be able to carry over 100,000 passengers a year on a journey back in time on our little bit of history that is kept alive thanks to the efforts of our hundreds of volunteers.

To celebrate the 50th Anniversary we have an eight day event planned, including three days between 25th and 27th June of special trains hauled by the Royal Scot. We also hope to welcome back into traffic the very locomotive that hauled the reopening train back in 1968. And June 29th will see us recreate that opening train, as we celebrate the achievements of the Railway's founding volunteers. Full details of all the events planned for the celebration week between June 24th and July 1st, as well as pre-booking for the Royal Scot specials, is on the website.

As well as the Anniversary event, we also have the inaugural Food & Drink festival June 9th - 10th, Vintage Train Sunday's starting in July and plenty more events throughout the year.

To make all this happen, as well as prepare the Railway for another 50 years of operation, takes a huge volunteer effort. We have over 600 active volunteers, but are always keen to welcome more people to the team. We provide full training and have a wide range of roles on offer, including in operations, administration and engineering across the Railway's activities, so whatever your level of experience and whatever time you can offer, please do consider joining us in this very special year in the Railway's history. Matt Stroh

Yorkshire Loft Ladders, Quality You Can Trust

These days most homeowners suffer from a lack of storage space. So many precious items that need to be kept - but where to store it all? That's where Yorkshire Loft Ladders come in. The company, based locally, offers homeowners the opportunity to maximise their storage space with a loft ladder, 50 sq ft of boarding and a light all fully fitted in less than a day from just £277 + VAT. But it's not just the affordability of the package the company offers that makes Yorkshire Loft Ladders stand out as manager Mark Hodson explains: 'Our watchwords are Quality, Integrity and Value. Quality in the materials that we use for all our installations and the fact that all our loft packages are fitted by time served tradesman so our customers are assured of the best job. Integrity in that we will turn up at the time we say and make sure the house is spotless when we leave, and Value in that we offer our services at a price people can afford. Our business relies on referrals and we get a huge amount of our calls from people who have been referred to us by our existing customers - that simply wouldn't happen if we didn't adhere to our overriding principles.

At the end of the day the old adage that happy customers lead to more happy customers is true and we work hard to make that happen for every installation we carry out!

So, if you want to make use of your loft space, however big or small, call Warren on 0800 612 8359 and he'll be happy to pop round and give you a no obligation quote so you too can make use of your loft.

Keeping our strength: Fighting the clock

There's no doubt about it; as you get older you naturally begin to lose your strength and your fitness. Climbing the stairs becomes a little bit more difficult; that walk in the countryside is now becoming more challenging; your legs and knees start to remind you of the previous day's exertions! This is all normal and is something that you'll accept if you want to continue to exercise and to enjoy the benefits derived from leading an active lifestyle.

"People who claim that they are too busy to find time to exercise now, will need to prepare to find time for poor health later in life!"

Exercise doesn't just have physical benefits; it boosts our endorphin levels and this in turn improves our mood and mental health. There are also many social benefits that are linked with getting out of the house to meet up with friends at a class or to go for a walk.

As' time ticks on', we start to lose muscle strength and with it our functional strength i.e. the ability to carry out our activities of daily living. The condition sarcopenia, which is associated with muscle loss, is a common condition that can affect around 10% of adults over the age of 50. After middle age, adults with sarcopenia lose on average 3% of their muscle strength every year and as a result sarcopenia can decrease both life expectancy and quality of life. However, the good news is that there are actions that you can take to prevent and even to reverse the condition.

Having a healthy diet and taking regular exercise can reverse sarcopenia. Furthermore, combining aerobic exercise and resistance training gives the fight a real boost. Below are 3 things that you can do that are simple to achieve and relatively cost-free.

Resistance Training

You don't have to buy expensive equipment or pay expensive gym membership fees to perform resistance training. Using your body weight against gravity (e.g. doing squats or press ups) or using a resistance band to pull or push against will strengthen muscles and improve function.

Fitness Training

Sustained exercise that raises your heart rate can also control sarcopenia. Combining fitness training with resistance and flexibility training is really effective and will further boost the fight against age-related muscle loss.

Walking

Walking can also prevent and even reverse sarcopenia and is an activity that most people can do for free wherever they live.

Summary

Sarcopenia, the loss of muscle mass and strength, becomes more common with age and can decrease lifespan and quality of life. Exercise is the most effective way to prevent and reverse sarcopenia.
