Mother of two young children, wife, daughter and business founder, Fiona started Goodwills Professionals in 2000 whilst juggling family commitments and completing a Law degree LLB(Hons) through Bradford University; she has established the business with integrity and a firm commitment to provide thorough service and expert advice.

An extensive range of services, all of which will help put legal parameters around your wishes, can be secured and suitably written in both simple and more complex arrangements, depending on your personal circumstances. Wills can be arranged for individuals or couples and can be put into place quickly and efficiently. Other services that Goodwills provide include:

Property Trusts- You can protect half of the value of your home from being used for nursing home fees.

Discretionary Will Trusts- In certain situations can be used to reduce inheritance tax payable upon death.

Lasting Power of Attorneys (formerly Enduring Power of Attorneys)- Can be used in situations where you lack the capacity, either mentally or physically, to handle your affairs.

Probate Assistance Services- (with fixed fees at the outset)

Guardianship for Children- Appointing Guardians ensures that you decide who looks after your children in the event of your death.

Safe Custody- A safe and secure way to store your Will in conjunction with the Society of Will Writers.

Guaranteed Funeral Services- Funeral arrangements and their associated costs with a guaranteed plan.

Don't be fooled by low-cost or do-it-yourself Wills that you can pick up in a supermarket. It is unlikely to provide the real peace of mind you deserve. An ill-conceived or badly drafted Will can prove more harmful than having no Will at all.

The decisions you do or don't make will directly affect your family and loved ones in the future. Phone Fiona Best at Goodwills for a confidential conversation about how she and her team can help you prepare for the future and gain real peace of mind.

It is a startling fact, but 70% of the population do not have a Will. In Britain 1,300 people die every day without having sorted out their affairs. It is just one of those things that people tend to put off. "I'm still young." "I don't have much to put in a will." "My spouse will sort everything." "I'll wait until I buy a house." "I'm in good health, I have plenty of time to do it." "I can't face it now." "It is an expense I can do without."

The excuses come thick and fast. But having a Will in place is the only way you can guarantee that your wishes are carried out after your death. Making a Will lets your loved ones know that you care enough to "sort things out" in advance. Without a Will, it's possible for any relatives, in-laws and even ex-spouses to make a claim on your estate.

You'll be pleased to know, making a Will doesn't have to be a daunting experience, nor does it have to cost the earth. With the right kind of help and advice, you can put things in order in a matter of a phone call and a few meetings in the comfort of your own home.

A vital first step is to get advice from a qualified professional.

Fiona Best of Goodwills Professional not only meets this criteria, but exceeds it. With a legal practice commendation from a College of Law in York, and ten years experience working in Yorkshire, Fiona has literally written thousands of Wills and is an expert on all the nuances and relevant details that come with the territory.
