

COFFEE BAHT CREAM

by Ludorum

Ah'd bin fer a walk wi' mi' missus,
It wor cowd an' mi' fingers wor blue,
Soa we went in a caff up i' 'Aworth,
An' ordered 'ot coffee fer two.

Well, t' waitress wor nobbut a dragon,
As she towd us, Doan't kick up a stink,
Ah can't serve thee coffee this mornin'

Me 'eater 'as gone on the blink!

Soa Ah sed as we'd try t' caff i'
Crossroads,
(A daft name fer t' place to be called -
They've got that much traffic through t' village
Yer can't cross the road theer at all!)

"We'll 'ave coffee baht cream," Ah
towd t' waitress,
An' that seemed ter be t' lass's cue:
"We an't got no cream 'ere this mornin',
We've coffee baht milk, will that do?"

What a difference a year makes...It was just over a year ago Paula Vasilev was living in the Cosa del Sol thinking about how she could make her way back to England. She'd had enough of the sun and the sea and the bright blue skies! (Was she mad?) "It sounds funny but I grew tired of the lifestyle in Spain and I missed England." Paula spent the previous 10 years living and working in Benidorm where she met her husband and started a family. "Don't get me wrong, Spain is a great place to visit but I was looking for more of a community for my family and living in a resort town was not the ideal family situation." Once Paula made up her mind it was just a matter of finding the right opportunity back in England. "When I read about The Copper Dragon and The Cross Roads pub I knew I was on to something I could really enjoy and a great chance to get back to a English village life style."

In no time Paula had signed on the dotted line and moved her family to Cross Roads... and she hasn't looked back since! "We love it here and we've been made to feel very welcome by everyone; we are grateful for that ." Not only is Paula and her husband, Baz, involved with the pub, but also Paula's mum and Dad too. "We work together and enjoy joining in the community. We have a laugh and want the pub to fit in with local life."

Actions speak louder than words and Paula has followed through with her intention to create a place for everyone in the community. From Karaoke, to Quiz Night, to Bingo, Children's Disco, a monthly community Car Boot Sale to raise money for Lees Primary School and even Full English Breakfasts served on the weekends!...it is all happening at The Cross Roads...stop in and see for yourself, you will certainly get a warm welcome.
