When Claire Foster envisaged owning her own shop one day, she had imagined a heritage frontage and a wonderful space to fill with beautiful things.

As a buyer and Manager at the 1853 Gallery, Salts Mill in Saltaire for over 13 years, Claire was used to surrounding herself with art, books, and fine stationery.

So when the opportunity to occupy 74 Main Street in Haworth came up, it seemed like a 'sunlight on closed lids' moment, (coincidentally the name of one of Claire's suppliers;) the feeling was right, and The Imaginarium Gallery was formed.

Before opening in June, Claire's partner, Barry, had painted the shop both inside and out and restored its heritage charm.

Claire has been able to utilise her talent for choosing unique and fine things to fill the shop: Stationery, notebooks, rubber stamps, magnets, and gift tags, from specialist stockists like Cavallini Press, miniature driftwood sculptures by Sarah Jane Brown, Selbourne pottery by Robert Goldsmith, Recycled Derwent Pencil Jewellery by Zinc White (Huddersfield).

"The shop is filled with things I love" Claire asserted.

One range that is proving to be very popular is local artist Kate Thornton's collage greetings cards, incorporating local maps and vintage imagery. Beautiful brooches, badges, vintage buttons and magnets are all affordable and make lovely gifts. Also found amongst quirky design led products is work by one of Claire's favourite local artists Clare Caulfield which have been attracting a lot of attention. Caulfield has a distinct style that captures iconic places with illustrative charm, Haworth is on the agenda. Another favourite item is a glass timer made from an old bobbin, available in different sizes and reasonably priced.

The Imaginarium adds a certain hand crafted quality gift, art, and stationery destination to Haworth's Main Street. It sits well with the vintage feel of the place.
