Sandra Dickinson

Nikki Carroll

Sandra Dickinson fell in love with Haworth four years ago when touring with the 'Anything Goes' stage show. (Some will remember Sandra as Trillian in the television version of The Hitchhikers Guide to the Galaxy and will be delighted to find that she will soon be on our screens again in the BBC series New Tricks.) The cream teas at the Old Apothecary Tea Rooms might have had something to do with Sandra's new found love for Haworth, but in addition to that, Sandra confesses that she became hooked on a shop on Main Street; Firth's, the long established bastion of fashion for ladies in Yorkshire.

"She practically had to be dragged out screaming" Nikki, Firth's owner, recalled Sandra's first encounter with Firth's and the excitement the two shared for fashion; it was the beginning of a firm friendship. Now Sandra visits Haworth as often as possible and is straight into Firth's to see Nikki's latest collection. Recently she went so far as to help hang the stock and was spotted by customers with her head in boxes of new arrivals. Coming up for air, Sandra smiled as they asked "Is this your usual work?" and "You're a dead ringer for Sandra Dickinson!" "No, really?" Sandra winked, "I'll have to tell my husband that one!" Everyone shared a laugh and the mood in the shop was jovial.

And the laughs keep coming as Nikki has introduced Sandra to pole dancing (part of Nikki's 'fitness' regime). "Nikki looks great upside down!" says Sandra, "I'm in awe of her on the pole, she's really something to aspire to". Sandra on the other hand has her own secrets for staying young (btw, her husband is some 20 years younger than she.) "I have discovered my own bag of tricks from the Swiss company, Arbonne, which is proving to be effective," she mused, "Standing there in my husbands boxer shorts at the last pole dancing class, I thought, the Body Duo (age reversal creams) are really working. The old body is holding its own against these young ones!"

Never wanting to miss an opportunity Sandra and Nikki, the dynamic duo themselves, have now joined forces with Arbonne Skin Care Products, and are independent consultants for Skincare's best kept secret. Sandra left Nikki her little bag of tricks, the anti-aging skin care range of Arbonne, a couple of months back and in no time had a "convert". "The products sell themselves...all you have to do is try them and you will see how well they work." The two are now having a great time spreading the news. Nikki is so confident in and a Firm Friendship beautiful business opportunity worth sharing the product she encourages customers to take home and try the full range for free. "With so many different premium brands now available, people quite rightly want to try before they buy. Over the years I've tried all the best lotions and potions, but the effect of Arbonne is amazing and so quick to show results."

Founded around 30 years ago, Arbonne began with the aim of providing skin care products unparalleled in quality and effectiveness. The botanical based products mix the best of science with the best of nature.

"I'm delighted to be able to share my new found secret with my customers; there may even be some who will be as convinced as Sandra and I and will want to join the Arbonne team." Nikki quipped, "I can recommend a crackin' pole dancing class too!"
